8:30 AM

Pavilion Ballroom

PRINCIPLES OF THE NEW URBANISM: CNU NEW MEMBER ORIENTATION

This year, we begin CNU 2000 with a look at the Principles of the New Urbanism. CNU veterans will give an overview of the New Urbanist movement, explain the Charter for the New Urbanism, and describe implementation techniques. This session is specifically designed to introduce new members to New Urbanism and to refresh returning members' memories.

Robert Davis, Arcadia Land Company and Seaside Community Development

Andres Duany, Duany Plater-Zyberk

Raymond Gindroz, Urban Design Associates

Elizabeth Plater-Zyberk, Duany Plater-Zyberk

Jeff Speck, Duany Plater-Zyberk

Matt Taecker, Calthorpe Associates

1:00 PM

Pavilion Ballroom

PORTLAND ORIENTATION

Over a box lunch, the Portland Local Host Committee provide an inside look at the Portland Metropolitan Region, its history, and current development issues.

Commissioner Charles Hales, City of Portland

Gregory Baldwin, Zimmer-Gunsul-Frasca Partnership

2:00–5:30 PM

PORTLAND BUS AND WALKING TOURS

Board buses on the corner of 6th and Salmon outside the front door of the Hilton Hotel. Requires pre-registration. See staff at the Special Events desk for tickets.

OPENING SESSION

Welcome

Shelley Poticha, Congress for the New Urbanism

Brian Scott, Livable Oregon

Keynote: The Politics of Place

The Enterprise Foundation has a long history of re-building distressed urban neighborhoods. Now they are turning their attention to regional growth dynamics and the need to build affordable housing in all communities. This effort raises many of the concerns of The Politics of Place.

Introduction: Robert Davis, Chairman of the CNU Board of Directors

Rey Ramsey, President and COO, The Enterprise Foundation

8:30–10:00 PM

Schnitzer Theater Lobby

OPENING NIGHT RECEPTION

FRIDAY, JUNE 16, 2000

LINKING THE NEIGHBORHOOD AND THE REGION: FROM MODEL TO REALITY

How well is New Urbanism fulfilling its promise of building good communities? What are the effects of tools like Urban Growth Boundaries and smart growth investment strategies? What models are working to make a difference at both the neighborhood and regional scales? This plenary session will delve into these questions and provide a framework to approach the more detailed sessions to come.

Welcome to Portland

Commissioner Charles Hales, City of Portland

The Portland Rub

Introduction: G.B. Arrington, Parsons-Brinckerhoff

The Honorable Earl Blumenauer, Oregon Third Congressional District,
U.S. House of Representatives

Toward a Unified Model

Moderator: Ellen Dunham-Jones, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Andres Duany, Duany Plater-Zyberk & Co

William Morrish, Design Center for the American Urban Landscape

CNU 2000 Overview

William Lennertz, Lennertz Coyle & Associates

11:00 am – 12:00 PM

CONCURRENT PLENARY SESSIONS

Schnitzer Theater

THE POWER OF THE PURSE

Focus on State Strategies to Finance Smart Growth

California's innovative State Treasurer has developed a "Smart Investments" strategy to concentrate infrastructure development in existing neighborhoods and near transit. He has received national recognition for his work. Find out how it applies to your state.

Introduction: Jean Driscoll, CNU Board of Directors

The Honorable Philip Angelides, Treasurer, State of California

Pavilion Ballroom

THE GOOD CITY AND THE GOOD LIFE

Focus on Small Towns and Rural Places

How do we create places that genuinely reflect the community we inhabit, with all its diversity of opinions and priorities? Author, Director of the Institute for the Rocky Mountain West, and former Mayor of Missoula, Montana Daniel Kemmis looks at the civic life behind creating sustainable, livable places, especially outside large metropolitan areas.

Introduction: Commissioner Brian Cole, Baker County, Oregon
Daniel Kemmis, O'Connor Center for the Rocky Mountain West

1:15–2:45 PM

BREAK-OUT SESSIONS I

Pavilion East

The Founders Session

Founding members of the Congress for the New Urbanism present current work and discuss recent challenges.

Dan Solomon, Solomon E.T.C.
Elizabeth Plater-Zyberk, Duany Plater-Zyberk & Co.
Andres Duany, Duany Plater-Zyberk & Co.

Pavilion West

The Politics of Smart Growth: Current Battles for Regional Planning

Activists will talk about their experiences implementing innovative programs to overcome sprawl. They've played the hardball politics and gotten states to put regulations — and money — into better development patterns. The panelists come from a variety of backgrounds, and they have used many approaches to changing their states' development policies. Panelists will discuss why they chose the tactics they did, and what it took to make them successful.

Sponsored by the National Growth Management Leadership Alliance

Moderator: Robert L. Liberty, 1000 Friends of Oregon
Charles Pattison, 1000 Friends of Florida
Elizabeth Humstone, The Vermont Forum on Sprawl
Barbara Lawrence, New Jersey Future
David Beach, EcoCity Cleveland
Dru Schmidt-Perkins, 1000 Friends of Maryland

Broadway I & II

Information Technology for Community Design

There is an exciting new set of tools available for engaging communities in the planning process. GIS, the Internet, and other information technologies can allow stakeholders to understand and participate in decision-making.

Moderator: Peter Katz, Urban Advantage
Eliot Allen, Criterion Planners/Engineers Inc.
Michael Kwartler, The Environmental Simulation Center, Ltd.
Tom A. Horan, Ph.D., Claremont Graduate University Research Institute

Broadway III & IV

Calming Down the Cars on Neighborhood Streets

Turn radii, planter strips, signage — what does it take to make a street safe and calm? This session looks at what Oregon has done, and what all cities can do, to allow cars and people to share the road.

Moderator: Cynthia Pappas, City of Springfield
Reid Ewing, Florida Atlantic University/Florida International University Joint Center for Environmental & Urban Problems
Bob Cortright, Oregon Department of Land Conservation and Development

Grand Ballroom II

Sick, Dying, and Dead Malls: Revitalizing Older Suburbs

Failing malls, or grayfields, are prime opportunities for New Urbanist redevelopment. For the past several months, CNU has joined with PricewaterhouseCoopers, the Harvard Graduate School of Design, and other stakeholders to try to determine how many failing malls there are in the United States, and what design strategies can turn these large, single-use properties into mixed-use village centers. This session will reveal the first results of this important study.

Moderator: Will Fleissig, Continuum Partners
Mark Falcone, Continuum Partners
Victor Dover, Dover, Kohl & Partners

North Galleria

Design with Nature: Environmentalism in Cities

New Urbanism proposes to salvage community. Environmentalism strives to save the planet. This session will examine the cutting edge and controversial challenges of incorporating a green infrastructure into the built environment.

Moderator: Councilor David Bragdon, Metro Council
Daniel Williams, Jones & Jones Architects and Landscape Architects
Michael Hough, York University
Michael Houck, Audubon Society of Portland

South Galleria

Is New Urbanism a Niche Market or a New Paradigm?

Market analyses keep finding latent demand for New Urbanist development. This session takes the analysis further, looking closely at the unique conditions of inner-city neighborhoods, first-ring suburbs, and the exurban fringe. Panelists will present specific findings from the Philadelphia area and will examine the fast-growing literature on the subject.

Moderator: MarySue Barrett, Chicago Metropolitan Planning Council
Laurie Volk, Zimmerman/Volk Associates, Inc.
Patrick Starr, Pennsylvania Environmental Council
Janet Lussenhop, 10,000 Friends of Pennsylvania

1:15–4:45 pm

How To Do a Charette

Parlor A, B, C

This three-and-a-half-hour workshop, a reprise of a successful session at CNU VII, will provide introductory information on how to run a charette. Session facilitators will use a local Portland case study to present methods and tools for staging these important participatory planning events. Requires pre-registration. Inquire at the registration desk.

William Lennertz, Lennertz Coyle & Associates
Richard McLaughlin, Town Planning Collaborative
Victor Dover, Dover, Kohl & Partners
Harrison B. Rue, Citizen Planner Institute

2:45–3:00 PM

Plaza Level Lobby &
Grand Ballroom Foyer

AFTERNOON BREAK

Refreshments provided

3:00–4:30 PM

Pavilion East

BREAK-OUT SESSIONS II

Design for Existing Neighborhoods: Case Studies of Successful Infill Development

Infill development can be a balancing act: Besides the challenges posed by the site, developers must address community concerns about design, neighborhood character, and the addition of new residents or shoppers. Hear from public, private, and nonprofit developers who have successfully integrated infill into existing neighborhoods, overcoming obstacles to win the community's trust.

Moderator: Gil Kelley, Planning Director, City of Portland
David Mogavero, Mogavero Notestine Associates
Gary Reddick, Sienna Architecture
Dee Walsh, REACH Community Development
Carter MacNichol, Shiels Oblatz Johnsen

Pavilion West

Turning NIMBYs into Advocates

NIMBYs can be New Urbanism's best friend — or its deadliest foe. A few developers and architects have been able to turn their worst opponents into advocates for good development. These experts in the field will tell their war stories and share their models for "getting to yes."

Moderator: Doug Loescher, National Main Street Center
Rick Williams, Van Meter Williams Pollock
Debra Stein, GCA Strategies, Inc.

Broadway I & II

Federal Enclave to Urban Village: A New Vision for the DC Waterfront

May 19–21, 2000, CNU led a community workshop to create a dynamic new vision for an urban waterfront neighborhood in the nation's capitol. This workshop launched CNU's new Regional Partnership Program, which gives members the opportunity to give their knowledge to local communities that are struggling to accept New Urbanism. Workshop participants will present the exciting results of this inaugural event.

Moderator: James M. Moore, CNU
Hillary Altman, U.S. General Services Admin.Center for Urban Development
Andrew Altman, Washington, DC Office of Planning
Jonathan Barnett, University of Pennsylvania
Larry Beasley, Vancouver, BC Planning Department
Dena Belzer, Strategic Economics
Todd Bressi, Places Journal
James Daisa, Fehr & Peers Associates
Daniel Hernandez, Stockard, Engler & Brigham
Dhiru Thadani, Thadani-Hetzel Partnership
Daniel Williams, Jones & Jones Architects and Landscape Architects

Broadway III & IV

Bringing Back the Night: Lighting and Urbanism

The safety and comfort a pedestrian feels in a neighborhood is often determined by how well (or poorly) the area is lit. The experts in this session will give you an insider's perspective about the most current thinking on lighting techniques, technologies, and designs.

Moderator: Pamela Horner, Osram Sylvania
Jim Benya, Lighting Consultant
Nancy Clanton, Clanton Engineering

North Galleria

Taming the Highway Through Town: Redeveloping Main Streets and Commercial Strips

The session will explore strategies for resolving the conflicts that arise when arterial roads and state highways function as main streets passing through town centers. Presentations will include national and local efforts to revitalize old main streets and newer commercial strips, including Oregon's Special Transportation Area policy.

Moderator: Craig Greenleaf, Oregon Department of Transportation
Laurence Qamar, Lennertz Coyle & Associates
Rick Hall, Hall Planning & Engineering
Seth Harry, Seth Harry and Associates, Inc.

South Galleria

Civitas and Democracy: Placemaking in Our Current Political Culture

What kind of political life do New Urbanist places support? Aristotelian ideas about "the polis" provide us with a valuable urban and political model for living well together. How do we build on these lessons while responding to contemporary mass media, digital communication, and cultural diversity, enriching the bond between civitas and democracy today?

Moderator: Dean Doug Kelbaugh, University of Michigan College of Architecture and Urban Planning
Andrew Ross, New York University
Allan J. Plattus, Yale University School of Architecture
Chris Hubbard, WHA Architecture & Planning

4:45–6:00 PM

Schnitzer Theater

THE OREGON STORY

An in-depth look at the coalition that has helped shape the Portland Regional Strategy. Presented by the Local Host Committee and Livable Oregon.

Moderator: Bill Lunch, Oregon Public Broadcasting

Dr. Carl Abbott, Portland State University, College of Urban and Public Affairs
Jon Chandler, Oregon Building Industry Association
Patricia McCaig, Chief of Staff to Gov. Barbara Roberts

Mary Kyle McCurdy, 1000 Friends of Oregon
Ed McNamara, Prendergast and Associates

ADDRESSING THE CHALLENGES OF CHANGE

The Charter of the New Urbanism promotes mixed-income neighborhoods as the best model for cities and suburbs. But maintaining a mixed-income neighborhood is a balancing act. After public subsidies and careful planning jump-start revitalization in a distressed area, it is often difficult to retain the qualities that made a neighborhood special and the housing that made it affordable. This session will help us address local concerns about change, gentrification, and equity for existing neighborhoods.

Moderator: Jacky Grimshaw, Center for Neighborhood Technology

What is at Stake

Angela Glover Blackwell, Policylink

Jump-Starting Revitalization: How Hope VI has Made a Difference

Elinor Bacon, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development

Mission Housing: Strategies for Addressing Gentrification

Daniel Hernandez, Stockard, Engler & Brigham

CNU Update

Shelley Poticha, Congress for the New Urbanism

10:00–10:30 AM

Grand Ballroom Foyer

MID-MORNING BREAK

Refreshments provided

10:30 AM–12:00 NOON

Pavilion East

BREAK-OUT SESSIONS III

Density by Design: How To Do Density Well

Creating good infill and higher density projects is one of the most difficult aspects of New Urbanism. This session will explore how design can minimize opposition and improve building quality in compact neighborhoods.

Moderator: Larry Beasley, Vancouver, BC Planning Department Anne Torney, Solomon E. I. C.
Thomas Brink, RTKL

Pavilion West

Zoning New Urbanism

Coding and planning for New Urbanism is one of the perennial challenges of our movement. For an overview of successful practices in these fields, join these experienced practitioners for a review of what's unique in developing New Urbanist codes and for examples of specific applications.

Moderator: Richard Bernhardt, City of Nashville Planning Department
Jonathan Barnett, University of Pennsylvania
Gianni Longo, American Communities Partnership

Broadway

Town Founding and Community Building

There are many ways to make a new community. The developers in this breakout have used local resources to make unique, successful places. Speakers will compare the process of creating a livable community in a new and in a revitalizing neighborhood.

Moderator: Elizabeth Plater-Zyberk, Duany Plater-Zyberk & Co.
Rick Holt, Holt & Haugh Inc.
Mossik Hacobian, Urban Edge Housing

Grand Ballroom I

Developers on the New Urbanism: Urban Infill Sites

Building within an existing urban context or restoring a damaged urban form is a challenge, particularly if you need to make the bottom line pencil out. Three developers explain how they applied principles of New Urbanism to their recent projects. Projects to be presented include a HOPE VI neighborhood revitalization, the restoration of a downtown core, and small-scale mixed-use urban infill.

Moderator: The Honorable John O. Norquist, Mayor, City of Milwaukee
Patrick Clancy, Community Builders
Robert Davis, Arcadia Land Company and Seaside Community Development
Patrick Kennedy, Panoramic Interests

Grand Ballroom II

Civic Architecture

A rare glimpse at three award winning American civic architecture projects. Each of these great built works address a transportation challenge in both new and adaptive settings. The panelists will discuss the design and building issues they faced in achieving these significant contributions to the public realm. Projects to be presented include: Michigan Avenue Viaduct Reconstruction & Streetscape, Chicago, Illinois; Mid-Embarcadero Open Space and Ferry Terminal, San Francisco; and the Portland Light Rail Stations.

Moderator: Stephanie Bothwell, AIA Center for Livable Communities
James Adams, ROMA Design Group
Howard S. Decker, DLK Architecture Planning Landscape
Paddy Tillet, Zimmer-Gunsul-Frasca Partnership

North Galleria

Transit + Land Use = Profits? How They Do It in Portland

Portland has pushed the transit land use connection further than any other American city. Development is underway on three 100-acre cutting edge New Urbanist projects along Portland's light rail system. The major movers behind the projects will share their lessons learned and what it would take to do it again.

Moderator: G.B. Arrington, Parsons Brinckerhoff
Dick Loffelmacher, PacTrust
Max Talbot, City of Gresham
Ed Hum, Bechtel Corporation

South Galleria

Mixed Income Neighborhoods: Development and Stabilization

Rebuilding successful mixed income neighborhoods requires a delicate balance of new construction, revitalization, and preservation. In these case studies, experienced practitioners will talk about how they have improved the physical character of a neighborhood, while stabilizing and providing opportunities for economically and racially diverse households.

Moderator: Daniel Hernandez, Stockard, Engler, & Brigham

Raymond Gindroz, Urban Design Associates

Von Nkosi, Atlanta Neighborhood Development Partnership, Inc.
Steve Suzuki, Asian Neighborhood Design
Ada Chan, Asian Neighborhood Design

Parlor A, B, C

Building Greener Cities

The greening of communities, at all scales, has to do with the re-incorporation of natural system processes into the urban fabric. Improving air and water quality, recharging potable water storage and providing a respite from daily urban rigor, these “natural” places have measurable positive impacts on real estate value, taxes and human well being. This panel will discuss architectural and planning projects, at various scales, that are changing the way communities function while providing a more sustainable habitat for all organisms.

Moderator: Susan Mudd, Citizens for a Better Environment
William D. Browning, Green Development Services
Doug Farr, Farr Associates, Architecture & Planning
Harriet Tregoning, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency

12:00–1:30 PM

1:30–3:30 PM

Pavilion East

LUNCH ON YOUR OWN BREAK-OUT SESSIONS IV

Asset Building in Affordable Neighborhoods

Come explore asset-building, a development strategy currently being implemented in various urban neighborhoods. Community members identify human, cultural, historical or physical assets that can provide a foundation for development. They then build on these characteristics to improve the quality of life for existing residents. Speakers will place special emphasis on projects that bring customers to neighborhood businesses, revive a neighborhood’s cultural heritage, and preserve historic resources.

Moderator: Daniel Hernandez, Stockard, Engler & Brigham
Joshua Simon, East Bay Asian Local Development Corporation
Rick Lowe, Project Row House
Peter Wilcox, Wilcox and Associates

Pavilion West

Old Buildings, New Uses: Tools for Community Revitalization

Civic buildings must keep pace with changing neighborhood needs. This session will show how some innovative communities have been revitalized by creatively reusing and updating historic buildings, like railroad stations, government facilities, and schools, to rebuild neighborhoods.

Moderator: Hank Dittmar, Great American Station Foundation
Roy Strickland, Massachusetts Institute of Technology
Frank Giblin, U.S. General Services Admin. Center for Urban Development

Broadway

Is Design a Catalyst for Community?

A Report from the Seaside Symposium

Does the design of a new town really help to form and maintain community? Social scientists, architects, developers and the audience will briefly review the material presented at the the Seaside Institute-CNU conference, “Is Design a Catalyst for Community?” We will then take up the conversation where that conference left off. Join in and add your two cents.

Moderator: Phyllis Bleiweis, The Seaside Institute
David Brain, New College of the University of South Florida
Robert Davis, Arcadia Land Company and Seaside Community Development
Raymond Gindroz, Urban Design Associates
Emily Talen, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign
Anne Vernez-Moudon, University of Washington

Grand Ballroom I

Developers on the New Urbanism: New Growth/Large Parcel Sites

Three developers with recent projects built on suburban, exurban, or very large infill sites explain how the principles of the New Urbanism were applied to the properties. Projects to be presented include a mixed-use traditional neighborhood of custom-built homes, a mixed-use traditional neighborhood built out by production builders and a large scale brownfield redevelopment.

Moderator: Todd Zimmerman, Zimmerman Volk Associates
Vincent Graham, Civitas
Randy Lyon, Lake Nona Property Holdings, Inc.
Greg Vilkin, Forest City Development

Grand Ballroom II

Where Do We Go with Growth: Denser Neighborhoods and NIMBYism

It's a truism that "the two things nobody wants are sprawl and density." But until population stops growing, it's got to be one or the other. This panel brings together public officials who are confronting anti-density apologists. Panelists will share their experiences with overcoming NIMBYism and planning for important necessities like affordable housing and building more compact neighborhoods.

Moderator: Judy Corbett, Local Government Commission
Honorable Gil Garcia, Council Member, City of Santa Barbara
Honorable Richard Conlin, Council Member, City of Seattle
Honorable John O. Norquist, Mayor, City of Milwaukee

North Galleria

The Politics of Regulating Taste: Design Guidelines and Their Repercussions

Neighborhoods want protection from snout-houses, mega mansions, and just plain poor design. Architects want design freedom. Builders and prospective homeowners want low-cost housing. City councils are besieged by homebuilders, designers, architects, and planners, each demanding they "do something." What design standards or review are appropriate?

Moderator: William Lennertz, Lennertz Coyle Associates
Marcy McInelly, Urbsworks, Inc.
Martha Peck Andrews, Andrews Architects
Jeffery Fish, Fish Construction N.W., Inc
Paul Leistner, The Portland City Club

South Galleria

Financing New Urbanism

Structuring a financing proposal for a New Urbanist development is a challenge. Unlike single-use development, where there are widely accepted benchmarks and comparables, New Urbanist developments need to demonstrate returns on investment for several categories of construction: Office, retail, residential, recreational, even industrial. Presenters who have put together proposals for many successful projects will share their secrets.

Moderator: Jean Driscoll, Consultant
Christopher Leinberger, Robert Charles Lesser & Co.
John Slidell, The Bozzuto Group

BREAK-OUT SESSIONS V

Spirit of Place: Beauty, Love, and the Mathematics of the Local Piazza

Our sense of place is not limited to the five physical senses. We experience being in a particular location on an emotional or spiritual level as well. This roundtable discussion continues the CNU VI and VII sessions of the same name. As the name reflects, this year's session will delve into the connection between mathematics, beauty and public spaces.

Moderator: John Montague Massengale, Architects & Town Planners
Nikos Salingaros, University of Texas at San Antonio
Victor Deupi, University of Notre Dame

Pavilion West

Public Space and Cyberspace

Like the automobile and telephone, the Internet will dramatically transform the physical landscape. Architects, developers, and planners must begin to consider how this medium will affect the health and shape of our communities, for better and for worse. The three speakers will discuss the challenges — and opportunities — the emerging digital economy poses for community planners and architects.

Moderator: Nevin Cohen, E-Marketer
Tom A. Horan, Ph.D., Claremont Graduate University
Anthony Townsend, Urban Studies and Planning, MIT

Broadway

Cutting Through the Red Tape: New Approaches to Regional Decision-Making

As New Urbanism grows up, successful models for regional decision making are beginning to develop. The most difficult aspect of this type of governance is building consensus and securing commitment from the many municipalities in a metropolitan area. The panelists in this session will discuss how they have managed to overcome some of these obstacles and give examples from their practice in the field.

Moderator: James F. Murley, Florida Atlantic Univ./Florida International Univ.
Dena Belzer, Strategic Economics
Gianni Longo, American Communities Partnership

Grand Ballroom I

Developers on the New Urbanism: A Moderated Discussion

Participants of the previous two “Developers on the New Urbanism” sessions will reconvene in a moderated discussion of the advantages and challenges of adhering to the principles of the New Urbanism in the development process.

Moderators: Honorable John O. Norquist, Mayor, City of Milwaukee and Todd Zimmerman, Zimmerman Volk Associates
Patrick Clancy, Community Builders
Robert Davis, Arcadia Land Company and Seaside Community Development
Vincent Graham, Civitas
Patrick Kennedy, Panoramic Interests
Randy Lyon, Lake Nona Property Holdings, Inc.
Greg Vilkin, Forest City Development

Grand Ballroom II

Building the Fair Share

Financing and building affordable housing in the right locations is a huge challenge. When the economy is strong, land costs too much; when it is weak, there is too little money for investment. The presentations in this session give insight into how regions are ensuring that they have an adequate supply, and equitable distribution, of affordable housing.

Moderator: Jean Driscoll, Consultant
Michael Andrews, The Enterprise Foundation
T.K. Somanath, Better Housing Coalition
Scott Reilly, Department of Housing and Community Affairs

North Galleria

Private Governance of New Urbanist Communities

New Urban communities place unique demands on their governing bodies. In a privately owned development, it is important to balance the short term needs of the developer to control his product with the longer-term desire of residents to take charge of the day-to-day management of their home town. Doris Goldstein and Wayne Hyatt have been writing the regulations for just this situation since New Urbanism was started and will share their knowledge in this important session.

Moderator: Daniel K. Slone, Esq., McGuire Woods Battle & Boothe LLP
Doris S. Goldstein, Attorney
Wayne S. Hyatt, Attorney, Hyatt & Stubblefield, PC

Does the UGB Raise Housing Prices?

There has been a lot of debate recently as to whether Urban Growth Boundaries and other New Urban planning techniques are responsible for the rising housing prices in some metropolitan areas. This session brings together advocates and sceptics to test this assertion, using Oregon's Urban Growth Boundaries as a case study.

Moderator: Councilor David Bragdon, Metro Council
David Crowe, National Association of Home Builders
Janet Smith-Heimer, Bay Area Economics
Honorable Mike Burton, Metro
